R/ED Update: August 2022

The R/ED Action Plan has been submitted as part of IDJC's Title II Solicitation Submission. As shown in the above bar graph, the number of Black youths arrested and placed in detention was significantly reduced in 2020. Interestingly, the numbers for American Indian youth remained fairly consistent. Based on the most recent R/ED numbers statewide, it was determined that a successful reduction of disparate contact for Black and American Indian youth would look like a continual downward trend of arrest and detention numbers of the next year. To achieve this, the following goals have been outlined:

- a. Goal 1: Reduce the number of arrests of American Indian youth specific to the eastern region of the state, where the highest total disparities have been identified for this group of youth
 - i. Objective 1: Analyze potential policies, practices, or cultural influences exasperating the issue.
 - ii. Objective 2: Collaborate with localized stakeholders to develop a workplan based on analysis to reduce arrest rates of American Indian youth.
- b. Goal 2: Reduce the number of American Indian youth placed in detention post-adjudication to determine why these youth are experiencing more time in detention after sentencing than other groups.
 - i. Objective 1: Perform an analysis on cause of post-adjudication placement in detention.
 - ii. Objective 2: Collaborate with local probation departments on policies regarding the discretionary use of detention and probation violations.

R/ED Update: August 2022

- d. Goal 3: Reduce the number of arrests of Black youth specific to the western region of the state, where the highest total disparities have been identified for this group of youth.
 - i. Objective 1: Analyze potential policies, practices, or cultural influences exasperating the issue.
 - ii. Objective 2: Collaborate with localized stakeholders to develop a workplan based on analysis to reduce arrest rates of black youth.
- e. Goal 4: Reduce the number of Black youths placed in detention pre-adjudication to determine why the Black youth are being placed in detention prior to sentencing at a higher rate than other groups.
 - i. Objective 1: Identify the charges associated with Black youth placed in detention pre-adjudication.
 - ii. Objective 2: Collaborate with localized stakeholders to develop a workplan based on analysis to reduce arrest rates of Black youth.

The Statewide R/ED Analysis completed in 2021 has provided a foundation of understanding for areas the state shall further investigate regarding disparities within certain populations. With the upcoming implementation of Youth Assessment Centers and Youth Crisis Centers statewide, Idaho is better equipped to increase education and resource referral in lieu of entry into the justice system. In addition, the state will begin working towards uncovering potential systemic or policy issues exasperating the arrest and detention disparities and will work strategically with its partners to develop a workplan to alleviate or mitigate any discovered issues.
